Teaching Assignments at the AERC, University of Karachi

Teaching following courses in the MPhil & PhD Program

i) Environmental and Natural Resource Economics: an optional course

The contents include presentation of the role and justification of economic approaches for environmental problem-solving, essential features of the logic and operation of the market mechanism, the nature and treatment of environmental effects in economic reasoning and decision-making, and the application of environmental policy instruments based on economic analysis. The modules review the suite of contemporary environmental management approaches (e.g. ecological modernization, ecological economics, and industrial ecology) with substantial (physical) economy dimensions.

ii) Microeconomic Theory I & II: compulsory course in Qrt I and Qrt II

The major topics covered in this course are Nature of Modern Economics, Language and Methods of Mathematics, Individual Decision Making, Consumer Theory – Demand Analysis and Consumer’s Choice, Production Theory – Market and Cost Analysis, General Equilibrium Theory and Social Welfare, Market Failure, Asymmetric Information, Externalities and Public Goods.

iii) Development Economics: compulsory course

The course is designed to better understand the lives of the world’s poor. What are their lives like? Why do they remain poor? Specifically, what price distortions and market failures hinder their quest to improve their wellbeing? Is there scope for policy to help the world’s poor? We do not get answers to these questions with anecdotes and abstract theory. Rather, we examine detailed survey data of the world’s poor, and look at policies that have been attempted and evaluated scientifically. This requires a solid understanding of how to read and interpret statistics.
